

My dear countrymen, today marks another milestone in our journey toward a self-reliant India. As we stand at the crossroads of global change and innovation, India must lead with compassion, vision, and strength. We have demonstrated time and again that our resilience is unmatched. From farmers working tirelessly in the fields to scientists driving innovation, every Indian is a pillar of our progress.

Let us pledge to focus on inclusive development where every citizen, irrespective of their background, has access to opportunities. Let us celebrate our diversity, our unity, and our democratic spirit. We must continue our battle against poverty, corruption, and inequality with renewed zeal. The world looks at India not just as a country, but as a civilization that stands for peace, wisdom, and growth. Together, let us create a nation where dreams are not limited by circumstances, and where the future is forged by the courage of our people. Jai Hind!